8. Execution, Placing an Order

- 8.1 The Company may, at its own absolute discretion, accept an "Order" from the Client. An Order is an offer to open or close a Transaction if the Company's price moves to, or beyond, a level specified by the Client. Examples of such Orders are:
- i. A Stop Order, which is an instruction to deal if the Company's quote becomes less favourable to the Client and which is generally used to provide some risk protection;
 - ii. A Limit Order, which is an instruction to deal if the Company's quote becomes more favourable to the Client;
 - iii. A Contingent Order, which refers to a pair of orders stipulating that if one order is executed, then the other order will be automatically entered into;
 - iv. A One cancels the other Order, which refers to a pair of stipulating that if one order is executed, then the other order will be automatically cancelled and which might be used to provide some risk protection; as such terms are generally understood by the market and may be offered by the Company from time to time.
- 8.2 The Client may specify that an Order is to apply:
- i. until the next close of business for the relevant Underlying Market (a "Day Order"), which, for the avoidance of doubt, will include any overnight trading sessions on the Underlying Market;
 - ii. until a date and time specified by the Client (but such an Order may only be an Unattached Order and may only be placed in respect of a daily or quarterly Transaction); or
 - iii. for an indefinite period (a "Good Till Cancelled Order" or "GTC Order"), which, for the avoidance of doubt, all unspecified orders will be treated as good until cancelled orders as that term is generally understood by the market.
- 8.3 If the Company orders, the Client expressly acknowledge and agree that:
- i. it is the Client's responsibility to understand how an Order operates before the Client places any such Order with the Company and that the Client will not place an Order unless the Client fully understand the terms and conditions attached to such Order.
 - ii. whether or not the Company accepts an Order, the Client is trading with the Company as principal and not dealing on the Underlying Market.
 - iii. when the Client places and the Company accepts an Order, the Client is trading with the Company as principal and not dealing on the Underlying Market.
 - iv. the triggering of the Client's Order is linked to the Company's bid and offer prices, not the bid and offer prices on the Underlying Market. The Company's bid and offer prices may differ from the bid and offer prices in the Underlying Market. The effect of such is that the Client's Order may be triggered even though the Company's bid, or offer as the case may be, moved to or through the level of the Client's Order for only a short period; and the Underlying Market never traded at the level of the Client's Order.
 - v. for the purposes of determining whether an Order has been triggered, the Company will be entitled (but not obliged), at the Company's discretion, to disregard any prices quoted by the Company during an pre-market, post-market or intra-day auction periods in the relevant Underlying Market, during any intraday or other period of suspension in the relevant Underlying Market, or during any other period that in the Company's reasonable opinion may give rise to short-term price spikes or other distortions.
 - vi. following the Client's Order being triggered, the Company does not guarantee that a Transaction will be opened/closed, nor does the Company guarantees that if opened or closed, it will be done so at the Client's specified stop level or limit.

vii. the Company reserves the right both to work and to aggregate Orders. Working an Order may mean that the Order is executed in tranches at different prices, resulting in an aggregate opening or closing level for the Client's Transaction that may differ both from the Client's specified level and from the price that would have been attained if the Order had been executed in a single tranche. Aggregating an Order means that the Company combine the Client's Order with the Orders of other Clients of the Company's for execution as a single Order. The Company may do this only if the Company reasonably believe it is unlikely to work overall to the disadvantage of any Client whose order is to be aggregated. However, the effect of aggregation may work to the Client's disadvantage in relation to any particular Order. The Client acknowledges and agrees that the Company shall not, under any such circumstances, have any liability to the Company as a result of any such working or aggregation of the Client's Orders.

8.4 The Company will not be under any duty to open or close any Transaction if the Company reasonably believe that to do so may not be practicable or would infringe any Applicable Regulation, law, rule or Term. In the event that the Company opened a Transaction before coming to such a belief, the Company may, at their absolute discretion, either close such a Transaction at the then prevailing bid price (in the case of Sell Transactions) or offer price (in the case of Buy Transactions) or treat the Transaction as having been void from the outset.

8.5 In the event that a situation arises that is not covered under these Terms, the Company will resolve the matter on the basis of good faith and fairness and, where appropriate, by taking such action as is consistent with market practice and/or paying due regard to the treatment the Company receive from any hedging broker with which the Company have hedge the Company's exposure to the client arising from the Transaction in question.

8.6 The Client may trade through his/her trading accounts from Sunday 2200 Hours to Friday 2200 hours (GMT) or Sunday 2300 hours to Friday 2300 hours server time (GMT+1). It should be noted that trading of certain Financial Instruments occurs during specific time frames. The Client is responsible to regularly visit the Contracts specifications on the Company's Website of such instruments for further details before trading.

8.7 By entering into this Agreement, the Client duly acknowledges and agrees that the Company's trading hours may be different from the hours that a specific Financial Instrument is tradable in any other market. The Company reserves the right to take any action, at its sole discretion, that includes but it's not limited to execution, modification, opening and closing of any of the Clients' positions as a result of the price movements outside Company's Trading Hours.

Third Party Order Execution

8.8 The Client has the right, at his/her own risk, to use a Power of Attorney to authorise a third person (representative) to act on behalf of the Client in all business relationships with the Company as defined in this Agreement provided that:

- i. the Client has informed the Company in writing in such a manner as the Company may at any time determine;
- ii. the Authorised Person has been approved by the Company;
- iii. both the Client and the Authorised Person have fulfilled such conditions, including the execution of such document, that the Company may at any time and at its discretion determine.

8.9 Unless the Company receives a written notification from the Client for the termination of the Authorised Person, in such a manner as the Company may at any time determine, the Company may continue accepting instructions and/or Orders given by the Authorised Person on behalf of the Client, and the Client shall recognise such Orders as valid and binding. The written notification by the Client for the termination of the Authorised Person must be received by the Company with at least two (2) Business Days' prior notice.

Furthermore the Company may, at any time and at its discretion, reject any existing and previously accepted power of attorney between the Client and any Authorised Person, and may reverse any relevant Transactions and restore the affected Trading Accounts' Balance.

8.11 By including these Authorised Person(s) on the Client's account, the Client personally indemnifies the Company against any costs or losses the Company may suffer as a result of the Authorised Person, or a person who appears to the Company to be an Authorised Person, giving incorrect or unauthorised orders or instructions, or failing to comply with the terms of the Agreement.

Closing of Out of Positions

8.12 The Client can open and close a position via the Company's Trading Platform and add or modify orders by placing "Buy Limit", "Buy Stop", "Sell Limit", "Sell Stop", "Stop Loss", and/or "Take Profit" on any Financial Instrument offered by the Company.

8.13 Once given, instructions may only be withdrawn or amended with Company's consent. The Company can only cancel the Client's instructions if the Company has not already acted upon them. If after instructions are received, the Company reasonably believes that it is not practicable to act on them within a reasonable time, or the Company reasonably believes that it is in Client's best interest not to act on such instructions, the Company may defer acting upon those instructions until it is in Company's reasonable opinion, practicable (or in Client's best interest) to do so, or notify the Client that the Company declines to act upon such instructions.
